KATHERINE K. MARTIN TO JOIN ROCK CREEK GLOBAL ADVISORS LLC

WASHINGTON, DC – Katherine Martin, former Head of International Regulatory Policy and Supervisory Cooperation at the US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), will join international economic policy advisory firm Rock Creek Global Advisors LLC (RCGA) as a Managing Director.

RCGA team members in the United States and Europe advise many of the world’s leading companies. Founding firm member Daniel Price highlighted Martin’s leadership role at the SEC and experience representing the agency in the Financial Stability Board (FSB), International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO) and in dialogues with counterparts in Europe, the UK and Asia.

“We are delighted to welcome Katherine to RCGA,” said Price, former principal international economic policy advisor to President George W. Bush. “Katherine advanced complex cross-border initiatives and coordinated the SEC’s international engagement. Her extensive knowledge of the substance and actors on such critical issues as climate and digital innovation will be extremely valuable to our clients,” added Price.

Former SEC Chairman Jay Clayton said, “Katherine is a recognized leader who enhanced the SEC’s regulatory and supervisory cooperation with key international counterparts and deepened its engagement in international standard-setting bodies. Katherine is a strategic and creative thinker whose expertise is widely-respected both at home and abroad.”

In addition to Price, Martin joins RCGA team members: Michael Smart, former international trade counsel on the US Senate Finance Committee; Barbara Weisel, former Assistant US Trade Representative for Southeast Asia and the Pacific; and Ambassador Jean-David Levitte, former Diplomatic Advisor to French Presidents Sarkozy and Chirac.

“I am thrilled to be joining RCGA,” said Martin. “I look forward to helping RCGA clients navigate an increasingly complex international regulatory and policy environment.”

Martin served in senior policy roles at the SEC, setting regulatory priorities, engaging with foreign counterparts and negotiating international agreements. She represented the SEC in the US-EU Financial Regulatory Forum and the US-UK Financial Regulatory Working Group. Martin also served on a number of FSB and IOSCO committees, shaping workplans on policy responses to COVID-19, non-bank financial intermediation, sustainable finance, and fintech. She played a leading role in working with European authorities on equivalence determinations and mitigating regulatory frictions caused by EU law, including the impact of foreign data protection laws on SEC examination programs, and in implementing the SEC cross-border regime for security-based swaps.

Martin holds a J.D. from the Syracuse University College of Law and a B.A. in Economics from Syracuse University.
